Here is my code: def add_record(self, record, dict): if record in dict.keys(): dict[record].append(record) else: dict[record] = [record] return dict I'm getting this error: UnboundLocalError: local variable 'record' referenced before assignment I'm not sure why, and I was wondering if someone can help me. A: Your issue is likely that record is not defined in this scope. Perhaps you meant: def add_record(self, record): if record in self.data: self.data[record].append(record) else: self.data[record] = [record] If record was not in scope then I can explain: >>> x = 10 >>> def f(): ... x = x + 10 ... >>> f() >>> x 10 where you can see the extra x is defined outside of f() and is local to f(). Also, in this line: if record in dict.keys(): You are presumably looking for a key: if record in dict: with dict being like a dict that you're passing in.
