(pdf) The iPod is only good for music and if you've ever tried to do anything else with it, you know that it doesn't excel in anything else. While I'm sure it will one day be the ultimate portable media player and iTunes the ultimate media player for the Mac, the iPod isn't nearly good enough for general use yet. With that in mind, I've rounded up a list of thirty-five apps that will help you get the most out of your iPod. At the heart of all these apps is Casper, the most ambitious music management program for the iPod to date. It comes with a full-featured music library organizer, radio, podcast syncing, customizable album art, and a customizable graphical view of your music collection. Casper can import all your music and podcasts using iTunes. It's very easy to navigate and doesn't have a lot of frills or organizational features like those of the other apps listed here. While there are some other good alternatives to Casper, none of them is quite as good as the commercial program. Without further ado, here are some of the best iPod apps for other uses. *Unless otherwise noted, all of these apps will work with the iPod Touch as well as the iPhone. iPhoto Yes, you've seen this one before, but it's still one of the most convenient apps for creating music playlists, swapping images and organizing your photos. iPhoto 2008 ($5, Free for Mac) iTunes The standard iPod media player, iTunes does all you need

Cabrio Activation Code With Keygen

Cabrio's powerful playlist window lets you drag and drop tracks from any of your favorite music applications, including Musicmatch, your iPod or any of the CD collection you have on your computer. No more stuttering while dragging tracks from your iPod! Beneath the playlist window sits the powerful track window that shows you a picture of the CD, music, or song wherever it is in your song collection. The Track Info window displays any information you need about the song, including the artist, genre, track number, time, title, and more. You can even sort your track list by artist, genre, or filename! Unlike most music players, Cabrio provides no more than three rows of song information so you won't have to waste any space by having your song-by-song text flow off the screen. As you listen to music, Cabrio pauses automatically when you are on music that is presented to you on the computer's screen. It keeps your system resources free, so you can use other applications at the same time. You can read the lyrics and see the album art in the pop-up playlists. With its fast and responsive skipping mechanism, you can skip tracks as quickly as you can with an iTunes playlist. To really catch your attention, Cabrio comes with a set of stylish skins to easily change its appearance. All versions of Cabrio are available to you free of charge.
