This really is truly spectacular and could a type of rare remarkable. The high quality was great throughout. Management, graphics and image effects were being all really innovative in addition to brilliant. The pleasure from the script, often humorous and possesses plenty of heart for many his characters are extremely very beautifully shaped.Q: How to get the actual color of a color, given a RGB() color? Im trying to combine a library component, to that I need to know the color that it created. I understand that the color can be calculated from its RGB() values; however how can I get the RGB of that color? E.g.: the color is defined as #FFFFFF; I need to get something like #2F2F2F; how would I do that? The component uses the code #color(0, 0, 0, 0) or something of the sort. A: What you have in your example is a standard color, and there are color functions in Flex for creating standard colors. This is pretty much the same as creating them by hand, so it's simple. To get the RGB of a color, just use colorRgb, for example: color(0xFF0000FF); This is the example you gave in your question. Note that 0xFF0000FF is just a hexadecimal representation of the actual color. To get this color in your application, you need to convert it to a color, which is easy, as shown above. If you needed the color as a color object, then you would use Color.rgb. Randy Tanner Randy Tanner is a fictional character on the American sitcom Seinfeld. He was played by Jason Alexander. Randy began appearing on the show at its beginning, as the moderator of Jerry's garage, but appeared infrequently thereafter. Although he is a close associate of Jerry, Kramer,
