language should I use to find minimum number of routes for perfect matching in graph? I am trying to find minimum number of routes for perfect matching in graph. A graph is an undirected graph where self-loops are allowed. A perfect matching in a graph is a subset of vertices (no two vertices of the subset are adjacent) where every vertex of the subset has an edge to all of the other vertices. For example, I have a graph {1,2,3,4}. If I want to find the minimum number of routes for matching in the graph, I should construct the graph the same way a pizza bread. i.e. construct the pizza bread like this: 1 + 2 - 1 1 + 3 - 2 2 + 3 - 1 4 - 1 - 4 4 - 2 - 4 3 + 4 - 2 3 + 3 - 2 2 + 3 - 1 1 + 2 - 1 1 + 4 - 4 1 + 1 0cc13bf012
