Best Answer: The best book is Study 101 for Teens by Mansfield. I have the 8th edition and it will guide you through the college application process. It is an easy reader at a good price. Best Answer: Yes, I have a self-help book that is great for motivation. I highly recommend it. It is called The Wallflower Á's Guide to Asking, Posing, and Getting the Job Interview You Want & Need. It is written by a teacher named Erin. Another great book by Virginia Raymond is called Summer College: 2nd Edition. I would also recommend starting and maintaining a journal. It does not have to be lengthy, but it helps you to keep track of what is happening with you, and to really start getting in shape. Best Answer: I do not know what you might like, but here are a few that I have heard about or have read myself (i.e. not required reading) 1. Navarro) I am not sure if this is the best book for you since it is a book for teenagers, but it is a book that teaches you about writing songs, and many things about music and shows you how to improve you playing by building good technique (tones, intervals, and scales). 2. The Road To Wealth: 7 Steps to a Life of Financial Independence (by Neil Pasricha) 3. The Bridge to the New Life: The Journey to Financial Independence (by Joe Donnelly) 4. The Road to Wealth (second edition) (by Lisa Nichols) 5. The Road to Wealth: How to Save and Invest in a New World (by Mark Fenton) 6. You Can Have It All: Getting Married and Having a Successful Career (by Steve Gillman) 7. The Passport to Wealth: Creating a New Future for Yourself (by David Bach) 8. Common Sense Retirement Planning (by Jane Caro) 9. The No-Nonsense Guide to Making It In America (by Mark Esworthy) 10. Financial Feasibility: Beating the Money Game (by Joel Greenbl
